Press Release

For Immediate Release

Xenysys, Inc. Changes Company Name to Clearview Software

New Name and New Image Designed To Promote Continued Growth and Market Expansion

Auburn Hills, MI, February 27, 2007 – Xenysys, Inc., a premier provider of new age content management solutions, today announced that it has changed its corporate name to Clearview Software. The company's enterprise content management (ECM) suite formerly known as Xenware™ will now carry the product name Clearview™. The new name and associated imagery were strategically selected to enhance the company's marketing image, as well as articulate the simplicity and elegance of the Clearview ECM suite. The name changes for the company and its ECM solutions are effective immediately.

"As we continue to expand our customer base and accelerate our product roadmap, our new name is a more accurate and compelling reflection of the overall value that our solutions deliver to our customers," said Michael K. Ball, Senior Vice President of Sales and Marketing for Clearview Software. "With its refined simplicity combined with its technical brilliance, Clearview will continue to set new levels of excellence for mid-market ECM solutions."

Clearview has been tightly aligned with Microsoft® technology plans and platforms since its inception. The company will reveal its newest product innovations designed for the mid-market with Clearview 4 at the upcoming AIIM 2007 Expo in Boston, Massachusetts in April 2007. The new anticipated release will highly leverage and extend upon Microsoft technology announcements in 2007, including Microsoft Office 2007 and Office SharePoint® 2007, as well as Windows Vista™. This release will hold significant interest for both existing SharePoint implementations as well as non-SharePoint users.
